

Specialization: Economics, bachelor's degree, full-time study

B1.B16 History of economic doctrines annotation

4 ECTS, 144 academic hours.

Control form: offset.

Summary. The course is a systematic presentation of history economic doctrines, since the emergence of political economy as a science to this day. The course is based on the concept of the development of economic theory from the first theoretical systems of political economy to the formation and development modern currents of world economic thought.

Academic objective: To present all the main areas of economic thought and the most important periods of its development. Show the evolution of the main directions of the twentieth century - neoclassical, Keynesian, institutional.

Relationship with other disciplines of the specialty: The discipline is closely related to following disciplines: microeconomics, macroeconomics